A military airfield is located eight to ten kilometers from Novosibirsk, and the same distance from a railroad running toward Vostok.¹ A highway runs from the airfield to Novosibirsk and a road from the field to a nearby cemetery. The field has a sod surface and is four by five kilometers in size. It has many installations on it and is open all year. New construction is in progress in the vicinity of the airfield. Source has seen three or four jets, types undetermined, at the field.

1. Comment. A town called Bastok (Vostok) is located southeast of Novosibirsk at (N 52-26, E 86-55) but it is not near a railroad coming from Novosibirsk. Therefore, "toward Vostok" should probably read "toward the east. (vostok)".
